Savenia Labs Launches Enterprise Subscription Service

The Universities at Shady Grove Use Savenia Labs to Drive Sustainability Efforts

Bethesda, MD – June 18, 2013 – Savenia Labs announced today the launch of the ‘Savenia Enterprise Energy Savings Program’, a new subscription service designed to support procurement, sustainability and communication efforts to save energy and money on appliances and electrical items for large enterprise customers. The Universities at Shady Grove, a regional higher-education center offering more than 75 degree programs from 9 Maryland universities, is using the program to support campus-wide sustainability efforts.

“Savenia Labs provides a unique perspective that helps us both understand the most efficient units to buy, and communicate this information across the campus with energy rating labels”, said Karen Mitchell, Director of Administration & Finance at The Universities at Shady Grove. “As we buy and maintain hundreds of appliances and electrical products, we plan to build this program into our sustainability and education efforts campus-wide starting this fall”

“The Universities at Shady Grove is one of the first large organizations to use the benefits of enterprise subscription to the Savenia Labs Database”, said John Jabara, Founder of Savenia Labs. “It is unique in allowing key enterprise staff access to our proprietary energy and environmental impact ratings database and energy rating labels to procure smarter, educate stakeholders and propel sustainability initiatives”.

Savenia Labs Energy Ratings are available to retailers, enterprise procurement and sustainability professionals worldwide.
